New York, October 20.—Continued heavy realizing, aitributed to large buil operations, and lafter a forenoon rally, the cotton market turned weak, closing barely steady at a net decline of 12@15 points net for the day. The market opened steady at a decline of 8#11 points, and during the early trading sold off to a net loss of 9#15 points under liquidation or local bear pressure, inspired by lower cables than expected, the foilure of 8#11 points man to show any freet in the Western belt and a feeling that the South Atlantic storm had hugged the coast too closely to do much damage in the interior. There were some reports of damage to open cetton from Georgia and the Carolinas, however, and shortly after the opening here a report reached the trade that it was snowing at Amarillo, with the temperature down to 30 degrees. This started a fresh weather scare, and from the early low point the market rallied sharply with the near menths selling a point or two above the closing figures of last night, while later months went up to a net gain of 6@5 points, but the Western belt forecast indicated that the lower temperatures to-morrow, the South Atlantic storm was evidently passing out of the belt, and wheelit was found that important old buil interests continued heavy sellers, early buyers jobs their confidence and the market partied several points offerings for long account became less urgent, and the market railled several points offerings for long account became less urgent, and the market railled several points offerings for long account became less urgent, and the market railled several points of closing prices were COTTON MARKETS.

New Orleans, La., October 20.—Cotton—Spot cotton quiet and unchanged: midding, 18%c. Sales on the spot 560 bales and 1,025 to arrive. Futures opened steady at a decline. Cables were favorable, but the opening of the New York market was discouraging and caused a sympathetic downward movement in prices here. This decline could not be maintained in the face of the freezing weather and snow in the Texas panhandle and prospects that cold and rainy weather would sweep the entire cotton belt, and at the end of the first half hour of trading were 14/816 points up from the lowest and 7/89 points over yesterday's close. Popular sentiment was with the market because of the weather prediction During the morning many telegrams from Texas and Oklahoma reported rain and falling temperatures. The demand, however toward noon was not sufficient to absort offerings, and prices gradually fell off almost to the lowest levels of the morning The market closed very steady at a net decline of 3/85 points. Futures close steady: January, 14.31. February, 14.39 March, 14.50: April, 14.58; May, 14.62; June 14.72; October, 14.35; November, 14.23; December, 14.23.
